

encouraged by the leadership that we see on the Senate side, and I have got to tell you—and I am sure that Mr. WALZ would agree with me—we have leadership out in every single community in this country, from the Veterans of Foreign Wars, from the Vietnam Veterans of America, from the Iraq and Afghanistan Veterans of America, from the Disabled American Veterans, from the Paralyzed Veterans of America, from every single veterans service organization, too many to mention in the time that I have allotted today, who put the pressure, provide the solutions, make trips up to Washington, D.C., as they will this next week, to ensure that they are holding us accountable for the terrific responsibility that we have before us, and that we perform against that responsibility and that we perform against the goals that we have set—very ambitious, but achievable goals—for this country and every single veteran who has served who lives in this country who we have a sacred obligation to today.

I am encouraged that this committee, this Congress, this country works on a bipartisan—or let's just say a nonpartisan—basis to get that work done. We are introducing two bills tomorrow, for example, both with Republican cosponsors. The first bill is the Veteran Prescription Continuity Act with Representative MIKE COFFMAN from Colorado and Representative WALTER JONES from North Carolina. That bill, if made into law, will ensure that veterans who were dependent on the care provided in part through prescriptions prescribed while they were Active Duty servicemembers at a military treatment facility are still able to receive those prescriptions as veterans. A lot of folks don't know this, but we don't have a unified formulary between DOD and VA. Some veterans, some prescriptions get dropped along the way. Here is a no-brainer, quick bipartisan fix to that part of the problem.

The other bill is the Mental Health Care Provider Retention Act, also introduced with WALTER JONES from North Carolina. This ensures at a time of crisis when it comes to veteran suicide that if you are an Active Duty servicemember and you are receiving good treatment at a military treatment facility for post-traumatic stress disorder, for example, or other mental health issues, that if the VA cannot continue that care because we don't have enough psychiatrists or psychologists—we are 45,000 clinical positions short in the VA today—if you are getting good care in the Department of Defense military treatment facility and there is not that care for you on the VA side as you transition out and separate in a given community like El Paso, that you will be able to continue to receive quality mental health care treatment at that military treatment facility.

Again, this isn't going to solve every access problem. It is not going to, in itself, reduce or solve the suicide crisis we have amongst veterans, but it is a commonsense, bipartisan approach that makes things a little bit better, that ensures that we have more access for more veterans and begin to take more steps toward reducing veteran suicide.

Mr. Speaker, I am very encouraged today by the opportunities before us, by the leadership that is ready to take on that work, and with the opportunity I have to join these leaders to ensure that we fulfill every commitment that we have to every veteran in America.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.
